Details:

I graduated from The University of Leicester in Medical Biochemistry in 2008 and am entering the University of Warwick postgraduate medical school programme. I have taught biology in the independent sector to A level and university entrance since leaving Leicester and have also taught GCSE chemistry for the past two years. I have been an A level examiner in biology, most recently this year (2008) for Edexcel, but I have also taught the AQA biology syllabus for 2 years. I am also happy to tutor for Baccalaureate type qualifications. I enjoy giving tutorial classes and have done so on and off for the past ten years. I usually travel to a student's home, usually within about 15 miles of Leicester. I prefer to give 1.5 hour lessons and can help with coursework as well as the written papers
