Details:

My experience in teaching English for students of different ages, social and professional backgrounds exceeds ten years. Part of this experience was gained at primary Catholic schools, and in my volunteer service within St George Community Centre in Cairo where I assisted and managed classes for pre-school children. I also did some part time courses in several centres in Cairo, Egypt %u2013 part of which was voluntary work to help and support young people in learning English as a second language to find better opportunities of work. I believe my experience in this field as well as my studies in pedagogical & psychological teaching methodologies have intensified my teaching skills and enriched my performance to ensure a spontaneous technique in teaching and managing classes

Besides teaching I used to publish some articles in Arabic and in English for Watani Newspaper and after some time I worked as a casual Arabic editor. Mastering both Arabic and English is an asset in dealing with new immigrant children with Arabic background

For me it has never been a one-way process of teaching students how to improve and excel in communicating English. It was rather a sort of mutual benefit. I always learnt from my students, how to upgrade my knowledge by searching for extra material to hand them during my teaching sessions to encourage them to talk and express themselves to help them widen their scope of thinking. I love this career and I hope to be a member in your teaching
