Details:

Firstly I would like to introduce myself as a Ph.D. student of Geography (science) from the University of Aberdeen. My formal introduction to science began with my X-XII classes and I got exposed to the entire spectrum of science during my undergraduate study. In an environment that is intensely competitive, and where research goes hand-in-hand with learning, which helps me to understand the basics of Science, and laid a sound foundation for excellent master degree program, not only provided me a strong foundation of Chemistry and Biological Science, but also exposed me to various fields of Sciences. I would like to inform you why I would like to become a teacher because our children are our future, and they need to be prepared for the future or they will not be successful in the working world. Teaching makes a difference in them, because it gives them tools to help them be successful in the future. The job of a teacher means different things to different people. For some, a teacher is simply a person who informs students about "necessary information" like chemical formulas, biological facts, or literary works. Yet for others, and for me, teachers are much more. They give their students not only their knowledge, but also their passion. They get involved in the lives of their students. They make their students feel good about themselves and they help the youth realize and fulfil their dreams
I believe with these educational values that I possess, teaching will add more to it and expose me more to areas where subject knowledge are relevant and in addition, put into practice what I have learnt so far.
